Online training for any flight course in ATO Avioner has two phases.
The first one is watching online lectures from individual subjects, where each lecture ends with a test, covering the scope of knowledge from this lecture. The number of questions in the test, after each lecture, is five with three possible answers, where only one is true, and the formula to pass it is the "to effect" principle. Passing this test is a prerequisite for watching the next lecture. In this way, all lectures from a given should be included subject to be able to go to the second phase of the training - online sessions. These lectures can be watched by any listener time, and come back to those who have already passed the tests many times. The test from a given lecture will not be credited anymore more available to the listener. His results (completed test) will be available in the "training file" in the listener's menu.
The second phase, an online session, is a videoconferencing meeting where up to eighteen attendees can participate listeners and one lecturer. This is a real-time meeting where the lecturer summarizes the training from this subject, he asks questions to the listeners and they can also ask. This is a seminar meeting and its purpose is to summarize the knowledge of the lectures viewed by the students. This meeting ends with a test passing training in a given subject. During the online session, the lecturer can invite for a vision (has such functionality in his panel) chosen participant and talk with him. The other listeners watch it and can write in the window conversations your comments / questions. The test for the whole subject, run by the lecturer at the end of the online session, has 10 questions and lasts 10 minutes. For this test, the listener may approach twice in one session. If the test is not completed in one session the listener can sign up again for the next session. Failing to pass (in two sessions) the final test obliges student to watch all lectures again and pass the staged tests after additional purchase this one subject.
Online sessions are set by the administration of the Avioner school and have their enforcement rigor, ie they are implemented every day from 5 pm to 10 pm (CET) and they are repeated for each item in periods of 7 to 10 days. Repeatability of the online session in the subject gives the students the convenience of choosing the right date for participation.
If the listener passes all the lectures in the subject and the session in this range is not set at the moment, then he must wait until the next appointment, which will be notified by email.
While waiting for the announcement of a new session from the subject whose lecture he has already seen, student may and should to watch lectures from other subjects, to save a time of access the course. By doing the same way training in accordance with the above description for all subjects of the selected course, the student on the end will be informed about the completion of the course. An electronically signed certificate will be sent by e-mail within two days of completing the last online session from the course.
An additional condition for completing the training in the chosen course is to watch all lectures from his online range.
